

OUR POLICY FOR SOCIETY

The massive influx of foreign visitors, the so-called “tourist industry”, has been and is essentially the major employers in our country, creating jobs that have helped to improve standards of living to our local businesses and any kind of businesses as well as to help improve the standards of life to a large number of employees.

The large markets of goods and services, provide the opportunity to support the local entrepreneurship by further stimulating the local economy

The aforementioned business activities and large numbers of tourists might unintentionally reflex or affect some vulnerable groups of our society or erode the local balance by distorting the expressions, traditions, habits or ways of life in the society that make up the residents lives , thus discouraging our customers from returning to this destination in the future.

As LOUIS CORCYRA BEACH we are interested in the balance of the social fabric and we encourage or participate in the effort of the local community to enjoy the tourist goods insofar as every aspect circle of society is ready to do so without distorting, replace, or abolish the special characteristics of the destination which is also a reason for choosing this very destination for the tourist traffic.

At the same time, we inform our clients about events of local interest such as cultural, religious or traditional issues that are spectacular and attract the interest of the visitors so that the participation-presence of those who wish to participate will bring the respective benefits to activities also out our business.

Life in the surrounding area, while in the summer months is in full commercial orgasm, in the winter continues to live in the rhythms that for years the inhabitants know but in even better conditions. Thus, children feel secure and outside the influences of international tourism, in the nearby regional elementary school and share the common courtyard with the Holy Temple, and right next there is a taxi station, a doctor's office and a pharmacy. Older people are housed in a nearby hotel (former hotel) away from any tourist entertainment noise. As a result of tourism, there are upgraded landscaped private areas, asphalted roads, sidewalks, street signs and pavement repairs, and a well seeing attempt to continuously improve stores and services from year to year, which in turn enhances the whole area.

The beach is accessible to everyone according to national laws and the amateur fishing continues in the winter, same place that our customers swim in the summer and no activity seems to have been adversely affected by tourism at the location and neighborhood where our enterprise is located

Our hotel develops the links with the local community, respecting environmental health, international and national laws, local authorities, the social cohesion and, indirectly but decisively, improving the overall economic image of the area since we are a serious business presence in this part of Corfu.

Our price policy is friendly to the local community and while the biggest part our hotel is comprised of all inclusive customers, the food / beverages charges are higher than those at the local enterprises

Our hotel is a huge hive of various nationalities and participates in money or in species in vulnerable groups of the local society, such as the poor, the church, the sports clubs or the cultural club of the region.

Our clients are involved to the society by donating money if they wish, to an “animal care company” that has given us a piglet for this purpose

Child protection

Our hotel feels the obligation and is committed to protect childhood from any form of exploitation, including sexual abuse.

We respect the childhood of the clients and the children of the area by forbidding alcohol and coffee to them, in bars/restaurants or when they come in contact with the playground and toys of the hotel without adult supervision

All employees have been trained to recognize whether a child is at risk both in physical and mental health from behavioral acts or omissions of people accompanying or coming to children.

Workers have been trained to be able to see what's going on in their "unusual" perception of the safety of our minors and not just our customers. The presence of someone 'strange' at the workplace of each employee is a pole of attraction and exploration of the purpose to be there.

Still, parental violence, either having external signs or causing mental injuries to the minor, is a reason to refer the matter to the head of department and then to Gen. Director The safe children's entertainment away from their parents, is our concern, we employ our staff for this purpose and they carefully watch and control all children's activities in the kid's club

If some behavior undermines children's safety, eg neglect of a minor, or could be perceived as a child's suspect, depending on the seriousness of the matter, the general Manager intervenes with suggestions to the parent or third party (if it is a customer) or informs the authorities of the place and the Child Protection Service

PUBLIC RELATIONS- EQUAL AND FAIR TREATMENT

As a hotel, we are well aware that we are addressing to many different people, different ethnicities, and in the context of our social interaction and communication, with our colleagues, clients or merchant we attribute honor and respect to any color, race, gender, language or dialect and even dress patterns. Dietary habits, or the well-known customary practices or and behaviors, leave us indifferent as appropriate in logic in a hotel. We attach particular attention and respect to people with disabilities where we primarily know their presence in emergency situations and also in their facilitation in everyday life. We inform our customers about the specifics of our site, both for the dressing requirements of religious sites of visit (eg monasteries, churches), as well as for behaviors in archaeological sites, with instructions from the receptionists orally and in writing lists on the info board
